

Digital Technology Makes Regenerative Medicine Accessible

We are developing hardware and cloud systems to revolutionize cell production in regenerative medicine and cell therapy. Until now, it has been necessary for experts to determine the state of cells. By making this process instrumental and quantifiable, we aim to realize a world in which the seeds of regenerative medicine can be seamlessly and quickly transferred from research to practical use.

